Constructing your Curriculum

EARLY YEARS

BARNET EDUCATION & LEARNING SERVICE

Currently, there is considerable focus on the intent, implementation and impact of the early years' curriculum. Inspectors will evaluate the impact that the quality of education has on children, particularly the most disadvantaged and those with SEND.

In this course we will be considering the following to help you plan your early years curriculum effectively to suit your children and your setting:

- what your children already know.
- how learning builds sequentially – by building knowledge, skills and learning behaviours from what the children already know and can do towards identified end points or outcomes
- the role of adults in moving children's learning on
- the accessibility and suitability of resources
- how children's interests are utilised and valued
- the statutory requirements in each of the seven areas of learning outlined in the Educational Programmes statements in the EYFS statutory framework.
